PREFACE

THE personal history of Thomas and James Watson, and of Elizabeth Judkins, the first woman who excelled in an art so seldom practised by her sex, presents little for the biographer to chronicle. Like most of the early engravers—especially those who take rank as the sommités of their profession, the past masters of their craft—they were content to labour for scant remuneration, finding that the pursuit of their art brought its own exceeding great reward. By dint of patient research at Somerset House documents have been unearthed which afford facts sufficient to show that the Watsons were not “brothers,” as they are usually designated in art catalogues; while, thanks to the same inexhaustible source, the relationship of Elizabeth Judkins to James Watson is now definitely established.

The compiler has again to express his thanks to the authorities of the Print Room, British Museum, for the use of the valuable annotated copy of Chaloner Smith's "British Mezzotinto Portraits" deposited there. By its aid—to cite one instance out of many—the identity of Sir Joshua's Miss Price is for the first time correctly given, and a very interesting little personage Miss Price proves, being no other than the maternal grandmother of the late distinguished statesman the Marquis of Salisbury. It was of this portrait—now at Hatfield—that Horace Walpole justly asked, "When was infantine loveliness touched with sweeter truth?" A reproduction of the mezzotint by James Watson forms the frontispiece to the present volume.

The lists of the Watsons' and Elizabeth Judkins's works given by Thomas Dodd in his "Memoirs of English Engravers," 1550-1800 (Additional MSS., British Museum, Nos. 33, 402 and 33, 407) have been found invaluable, though Dodd's biographies are for the most part worthless. The exhibition catalogues of the Burlington Fine Arts Club have likewise proved useful.

The prints seen in the British Museum are indicated by the letters B. M. appended to each state, followed by other letters or abbreviations denoting a particular section, collection, or grangerized book. Thus E.=Engraver; M.=Master; P.=Portrait; Cheyl.=Cheylesmore collection. Impressions have also been seen at the Victoria and Albert Museum, South Kensington (V. and A.).

Where a print, or a state of a print, has not been seen by the compiler, the references J. C. S. or Hamilton have been employed, meaning that the same are described in J. Chaloner Smith's "British Mezzotinto Portraits," or in Dr. Edward Hamilton's "Catalogue raisonné of the Engraved Works of Sir Joshua Reynolds" (edit. 1884).

Mr. Fritz Reiss, Mr. Henry Percy Horne, and Mr. Henry Studdy Theobald, K.C., have rendered the compiler much valuable help by favouring him with lists of the mezzotints by the Watsons in their collections. Mr. Reiss, moreover, kindly lent for reproduction his brilliant impressions of Thomas Watson's Lady Rushout and her Children (after Daniel Gardner) and of Miss Kitty Dressing (after Wright of Derby).

W. L.=whole length; dir.=directed; f.=front; l.=left; r.=right.

The measurements are given in inches and (unless otherwise stated) are taken from the edges of the subject engraved, the upright dimension being cited first.

Auction prices from famous sales, such as the Addington, Buccleuch, and Chaloner Smith, together with the prices for the last ten years, have been added. The states of the prints cited from the auction catalogues do not always tally, it need scarcely be said, with the states recorded in the present compilation.

THOMAS WATSON

52 THOMAS WATSON was born, according to Strutt, in 1750,¹ but Redgrave gives 1743 as the date. His father, also Thomas Watson, kept a printshop at 33, Strand, near St. Martin's church. It is not known from whom young Watson learnt the art of engraving. His bold, powerful style resembles that of William Dickinson,² and a warm friendship undoubtedly existed between the two; it is therefore not improbable that they were fellow-pupils together, perhaps with James McArdell for their master. One of Watson's earliest prints—that of John Pelling, D.D.—is a copy (in reverse) of an engraving by McArdell. Dickinson is known to have taken over McArdell's business in Covent Garden. In 1769, when living at the Fleece in Little Windmill Street, Golden Square, Watson sent to the first exhibition of the Royal Academy what is described in the catalogue as "a drawing after a picture of Rembrandt"; it is a half-length of an old man from the collection of the then Duke of Argyll, and was subsequently mezzotinted and published by Watson. Other mezzotints by Watson belonging to this period are an Italian Girl after Correggio; a portrait of Sir William Wallace "from the original painting in Holyrood House"; Miss Lumsdon and Miss Dempster after Willison, and a third portrait of an unnamed lady—now known to be Miss Willison—by the same painter. Some of these engravings were included in the eleven examples shown by him at the exhibitions of the Society of Artists from 1770 to 1776. In 1770 appeared the first print executed by Watson after Sir Joshua Reynolds—the portrait of Lady Broughton, published by Sayer.

² An example of their joint workmanship may be seen in the imposing whole-length of King George III. sitting in his coronation robes, after the picture by Reynolds; it was published in April, 1781, a few weeks before Watson's death. They also wasted their combined talent in reproducing some of H. W. Bunbury's notions of humour.

In the same year (1770), Watson was living at 8, Broad Street, but by October, 1771, he had removed to 142, New Bond Street, where he published his prints with Walter Shropshire, who was in business at 158 in the same street, and occasionally with William Dickinson,¹ who had taken McCardell's shop at 20, Henrietta Street, Covent Garden. When Shropshire retired in 1779, Watson joined with Dickinson in taking over the business, and they remained together in partnership until Watson's untimely death.

Watson executed some good stipple prints, which include portraits of Mrs. Sheridan as St. Cecilia, and Miss Elizabeth Beauclerk as Una, both after Reynolds, and portraits of Mrs. Crewe and Mrs. Wilbraham, after Daniel Gardner; but he specially excelled in mezzotint, working from pictures by Reynolds, Gardner, Willison, Dance, and others among contemporaries, and by Cor-

¹ Dickinson's delightful transcript from J. H. Mortimer of Parsons and Moody in The West Indian was published by Watson in April, 1776. In the following May he published Dickinson's mezzotint of Mrs. Sheridan as St. Cecilia (after Sir Joshua Reynolds); he himself engraved the same subject in stipple. His name appears as one of the publishers of Dickinson's brilliant mezzotint of Miss Elizabeth Stephenson (after M. W. Peters, R.A.) in September of the same year. Dickinson's mezzotints of Richard, Earl Temple (after Reynolds), of The Country Girl (after Peters) said to be a portrait of Mary Dickinson, the engraver's sister, and of Lady Charlotte Bertie (after the same pleasing painter), were likewise published by him, in 1778.

reggio, Rembrandt, and Lely among the masters of a former period. His portraits, after Reynolds, of Lady Bampfylde, Lady Melbourne, Mrs. Crewe as Ste. Geneviève, the Princess Sophia Matilda (daughter of the Duke of Gloucester), one of the loveliest among Sir Joshua's many beautiful representations of infancy, Mrs. Beresford and her sisters (Mrs. Gardiner and Lady Townshend), Warren Hastings, Mrs. Hardinge, and the Strawberry Girl, show, as finely as portraiture can show, how great was the ability of Thomas Watson. His style is in fact a reflection of all that is most characteristic in the greatest epoch of mezzotint; its breadth, its "large reliance on light and shade more than on line, on sweeping masses rather than simple contour; and its touch, not faultless, not narrowly correct, but almost invariably free."¹

Watson died prematurely in the summer of 1781. His father administered to his estate, and as the act clears up some obscurities we cite it in full, as follows: "On 23rd July 1781 administration of the goods, chattels, and credits of Thomas Watson late of the parish of St. George, Hanover

Square, in the county of Middlesex, a batchelor deceased, was granted to Thomas Watson the natural and lawful father of the said deceased."¹

The elder Watson continued to sell his son's prints, as Strutt (loc. cit.) notes, and published, April, 1782, his stipple engraving of Miss Elizabeth Beauclerk as Una (after Reynolds), and in September, 1785, his portrait of Bartolozzi (also after Reynolds), which had been left unfinished at his death, besides several of the Bunbury prints, generally with Dickinson.² He himself died in 1791, leaving a widow, Esther

² He had previously (Dec., 1782) published with Dickinson the second state of James Watson's mezzotint of Charles, Duke of Richmond (after Romney); he likewise published, in June, 1784, the third state of Doughty's superb mezzotint of Dr. Johnson (after Reynolds).

Watson, and two children, David and Mary Watson.¹

¹ Information derived from his will registered in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, 408, Bevor. In making his will (29 July, 1790), the testator describes himself as "of the Strand in the parish of St. Martin-in-the-Fields in the City of Westminster and county of Middlesex printseller," and refers to his premises as "No. 33 in the Strand." His widow proved the will 4 August, 1791.

A Miss Mary Watson was awarded the Society of Arts' small silver palette in 1772 for a fruit, flower, or plant drawing.

May 25, 1771.

9. DU BARRI, MARIE JEANNE GOMART DE VAUBERNIER, COUNTESS.

After F. H. Drouais.

Born 1746. As the favourite of Louis XV. she cost France 35,000,000 francs; her one merit was that she liberally patronized artists and men of letters, "probably," it has been suggested, "from a dread of epigram and caricature." She was tried before the Revolutionary Tribunal for having wasted the treasures of the state, and was guillotined 7th December, 1793.

To waist, in an oval, sitting, dir. somewhat to l., looking to f., powdered hair dressed high, plait on r. shoulder, dress open at the bosom and trimmed with lace. 13 $\frac{1}{2}$ by 11.

September 1, 1771.

10. KENNEDY (or JONES), POLLY.

After Sir J. Reynolds.

A much-admired courtesan of Irish origin. To Sir Charles Bunbury, one of her admirers, Reynolds wrote that the face has "more grace and dignity than anything I have ever done." She possessed influence enough to save her brothers from the gallows, when, in 1770, they were condemned to death for slaying a watchman in a drunken frolic. She died 1781.

Past the knees, sitting, dir. somewhat to and looking r., with her r. elbow on arm of seat, handkerchief in upraised hand, l. hand in lap; thrown across back of seat to r. is a cloak; jewelled comb in high-dressed hair, earring, long necklace; over a light, figured dress she wears a brocaded robe with ermine trimming and narrow sleeves, sash round waist, one end falling down on l.; behind her is pilastered wall, column and curtain in background. 17 $\frac{5}{8}$ by 14.

- I. With engraved lettering: "Sir Joshua Reynolds Pinx^t T.

Watson Fecit. published as the Act directs 1st Sep^t 1771. for H Parker N^o 82, Cornhill; S. Hooper, N^o 25, Ludgate [sic] Hill; W Shropshire, New Bond Street & T. Watson, in Broad Street." B. M. (E.); Hamilton (citing Buccleuch Collection, and Royal Collection, Windsor Castle).

- II. Artists' names re-engraved in large italic letters; "Fecit" altered to fecit. B. M. (M.; Cheyl.); Hamilton (citing Royal Collection, Windsor Castle).

November 1, 1772.

12. SAWBRIDGE, JOHN. After B. West.

Born about 1732; descended from a Kentish family settled at Olantigh in Wye. M.P. for Hythe 1768; Sheriff of London 1768; Alderman 1769; Lord Mayor 1775; M.P. for London 1774, 1780, 1784, and 1790. Died 1795. For some time a strenuous supporter of John Wilkes; afterwards became attached to Fox. Wraxall describes him as a stern republican in principles, almost hideous in aspect, of a coarse figure and still coarser manners, but possessing a strong understanding.

W. L., standing between fluted pillars, costumed as a Roman senator, dir. f., looking r.; his r. hand touches a paper on pedestal inscribed with "S. P. Q. R." l., a scroll is in his l. hand; to l. is seen a building. 24½ by 15.

I. With artists' names and publication line as in state II., but before name and title of personage. B. M. (M.; Chev'l.)

II. Engraved inscription: "Painted by B West. Engrav'd by Tho^s Watfon. John Sawbridge Esq^r, Citizen and Alderman of London: Member for Hythe in Kent. London Publish'd Nov^r 1st 1772 by S Hooper N^o 25 Ludgate Hill, W^r Shropshire N^o 102 New Bond Street, & T Watfon N^o 8 Broad Street." V. and A.

November 1, 1772.

13. SPENCER, GEORGIANA (POYNTZ), VISCOUNTESS. After Sir J. Reynolds.

Born 1737, died 1814. Margaret Georgiana, eldest daughter of the Right Hon. Stephen Poyntz of Midgham House, Berks; married, 1755, John Spencer of Althorp in Brington, Northants, who was created Baron Spencer in 1761, and Earl Spencer in 1765.

To knees, in a square, sitting, dir. and looking l., l. elbow resting on table r., hand supporting cheek, r. hand in lap; she wears a light-coloured dress with sash, and on her head she has a veil arranged in oriental style; across her forehead is a band. 13 $\frac{1}{4}$ by 11.

- I. Before any inscription. Hamilton (citing Royal Collection, Windsor Castle).
- II. With engraved inscription as in state III., but before title. B. M. (E.).
- III. Title added; in engraved lettering: "Painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds. Engrav'd by Thomas Watfon. Georgiana Lady Viscountess Spencer. London publish'd Nov 1st 1772 by S Hooper N^o Ludgate Hill, W Shropshire N^o New Bond Street, & T Watson N^o 8 Broad Street." B. M. (M.; Chev'l., three impressions).

14. MEREDITH, SIR WILLIAM.

After D. Gardner.

Born 1724 or 1725, died 1790. Son of Amos Meredith of Chester. In 1752 the title and family estates at Henbury, Cheshire, descended to him by the death of his grandfather Sir William Meredith, the second baronet. Lord of the Admiralty in the Rockingham ministry (August, 1765). A clever but slippery politician, who eventually was "treated by both sides with equal contempt, and dropped into obscurity."

To waist, in an oval, sitting, dir. towards l., plainly dressed, chin leaning on l. hand, ruffle at wrist, pillar behind r. $13\frac{1}{4}$ by $10\frac{7}{8}$.

I. Before any inscription. B.M. (Cheyl.).

Daughter of Sir Ralph Milbanke, 5th Baronet, of Halnaby, Yorkshire ; married, 1769, Sir Peniston Lamb, Bart., of Brocket Hall, Herts, who was created Lord Melbourne in the following year. She died 1818, aged 65. "The rise of the family was due to her brilliant qualities."
 She appears to have been "when no longer in her first youth" one of the numerous objects of admiration of George, Prince of Wales.

The child in the picture is the eldest son, the Hon. Peniston Lamb, born 1773. He died before his father in 1805.

23. NEWTON, THOMAS. After Sir J. Reynolds.

Born at Lichfield 1704, died 1782. Bishop of Bristol 1761. Dean of St. Paul's 1768. Author of a once popular "Dissertation on the Prophecies," which Dr. Johnson (a fellow townsman) admitted was "Tom's great work: but how far it was great and how much of it was Tom's was another question." In his autobiography he artlessly expresses his conviction that the "whole duty of a clergyman was to hunt for preferment by flattery."

To knees, standing, dir. to f., wig, bishop's robes, college cap in l. hand; to l. is seen St. Paul's Cathedral. 16 by 13.

I. Before any inscription; before the plate was cleaned. B. M. (E., margin cut).

32. RUSHOUT, LADY, AND CHILDREN.

After D. Gardner.

Died 1818. Rebecca, daughter of Humphrey Bowles of Wanstead, Essex; married, 1766, John Rushout, who succeeded his father as 5th baronet in 1773, and was created Baron Northwick of Northwick Park, co. Worcester, in 1797.

Lady Rushout's three elder children are shown in the print, as follows: Anne, died unmarried in 1849; Harriet, married, 1808, to Charles Cockerell (created a baronet in 1809), and died 1851; and John, born 1770, succeeded his father as 2nd Lord Northwick, 1800, died unmarried in 1859. He is known to the art world as having brought together the choice Northwick picture gallery.

W. L.s, Lady Rushout sitting in a landscape, with trees and river, column behind her, curtain above, bunch of grapes in her l. hand, looking towards her younger daughter (Harriet), who is standing and looking to f. with a book in her r. hand, and touching her l. cheek with forefinger of r. hand; the elder daughter (Anne) stands looking at her sister, whose r. arm she is clasping; the son (John), lying by his mother's side, has a basket of grapes in his l. hand, arm over his mother's r. knee, and is looking at his younger sister. 17 $\frac{3}{8}$ by 20 $\frac{5}{8}$.

- I. "Before curtain above was added; probably this state is merely a trial proof." J. C. S.

(6.) CLEVELAND, BARBARA (VILLIERS), DUCHESS OF.

This notorious lady was daughter of a "brave and virtuous soldier," William Villiers, 2nd Viscount Grandison (slain at the siege of Bristol in 1643). She was born about 1641, and married, in 1659, Roger Palmer, afterwards (1661) created Earl of Castlemaine. At The Hague, in 1659, she first met with Charles II., over whom she exercised a pernicious and almost uncontrolled influence for ten years. In 1670 she was propitiated for her loss of the royal favour, and even induced to settle for a time in France, by being created Duchess of Cleveland, and by various grants of lands, and pensions for herself and her bastards. Died 1709.

Nearly w. l., standing, as Minerva, in plumed helmet, dir. l., looking f.; her r. hand is holding up shield on which is emblazoned Medusa's head, a spear is in her l. hand, and to l. appears a landscape of mountains and trees. $16\frac{1}{8}$ by $13\frac{1}{8}$.

JAMES WATSON

JAMES WATSON was born in Ireland in, or more probably before, 1740. His brother, William, practised in Dublin as a portrait-painter in oils and crayons. James does not seem to have engraved in Ireland; from the similarity of their style it has been conjectured that he learnt the art when he came over to London from his fellow-countryman, James McArdell, then established at the Golden Head in Henrietta Street, Covent Garden, a sign which Watson also adopted when he set up for himself in Drury Lane.

Between 1762 and 1775 he exhibited eleven engravings with the Society of Artists at Spring Gardens, and became a fellow of the society.

In 1764 he began to publish some of his works from the Golden Head at 8 (afterwards 16) Craven Buildings, Drury Lane; but by 1767 he had removed to 45, Little Queen Anne Street, near Titchfield Street, Oxford Road, and by 1775 to 64 in the same street. After the last-named year he ceased to issue his prints himself.

Watson became one of the leading mezzotint engravers of his time. His style is distinguished by its delicacy and finish; and he seems, says Chaloner Smith, "to have been in the habit, when not completely satisfied with a plate, of working an entirely new one, instead of retouching and altering as would be done by a less scrupulous artist." An example of this fastidiousness is afforded by Miss Cunliffe's portrait, an impression taken from the first plate being not at all equal to those taken from the second.

In a working life of about thirty years, Watson scraped some two hundred plates from pictures by Van Dyck, Rubens, Lely, Ramsay, Reynolds, Gainsborough, Cotes, Romney, John Russell, Catherine Read, H. D. Hamilton, and others. Amongst his subject-pieces are several after Metsu, Moreelse, Schalcken, and other Dutch painters; also The Children in the Wood, after Reynolds.

Among the noblest of the fifty-six portraits which he mezzotinted after Reynolds are those of Nelly O'Brien, Sir John Cust, Mrs. Abington (as the Comic Muse), Sir Joshua Reynolds himself, Dr. Johnson (the famous "Blinking Sam" portrait), Edmund Burke, Anne, Duchess of Cumberland, Mrs. Lascelles and Child, Lady Stanhope, the Duchess of Manchester with her Son, Countess Spencer and her Daughter, and Barbara, Countess of Coventry. Of prints from other painters may be mentioned Frances, Lady Bridges (after Cotes), the charming Miss Cunliffe (after the same artist), and George Whitefield (after John Russell). These are notable achievements, brilliant in their lights, luminous in their shadows, delicate in the modelling of the flesh, rich in the draperies. Among the subject pieces The Female Correspondent, sometimes called The Letter (after Metsu,) cannot fail to please.

Watson died in Fitzroy Street, St. Pancras, 20 May, 1790, and was buried in Marylebone cemetery on the north side of Paddington Street. A stone formerly marked the spot.¹ His wife, Mary, daughter of Reuben Judkins, had apparently died before him. A month previously to his death he had made his will, which, supplying as it does some interesting facts, we cite in full:

In the Name of God Amen This is the last Will and Testament of me James Watson the elder of ffitzroy Street in the parish of Saint Pancras in the County of Middlesex Esquire first my Will is that all my just Debts ffuneral and all other Testamentary expences be fully paid and satisfied by my Executrix hereinafter mentioned within six months next after my death or sooner if possible Secondly my Will is and I Give and Bequeath unto my dearly beloved daughter Caroline Watson the sum of eleven hundred pounds which I direct her to raise and pay herself out of my personal estate and effects either by sale thereof or of any part thereof or otherwise as she may think most proper within six months next after my death I likewise Give and Bequeath to my said daughter Caroline all the plate I may be possessed of at the time of my death and all my books with the case in which they are usually kept and I also Give and Bequeath unto her all my pictures prints and drawings linen and china and also my two gilt pier tables gilt pier glasses and all other furniture in my drawing room to be taken possession of by her at my death and whereas my sister in law Elizabeth Judkins did many years ago deposit in my hands the full and just sum of two hundred pounds of lawful money of Great Britian on condition of my repaying her the same when thereto required with lawful interest which interest I have duly and regularly paid her up to the day of the date of this my Will my will therefore is that my said Executrix shall continue to pay her the like Interest for the same half yearly as long as the said Elizabeth Judkins permits the principal to remain in my said Executrixes hands and when she pleases to call in the said principal sum of two hundred pounds then my Will is that my said Executrix do pay and discharge the same within six months next after notice thereof with interest as aforesaid and with the payment also of which said principal and all interest that my Executrix shall pay from my death with any arrears that may be due at that period up to the time of paying the said two hundred pounds and interest I hereby charge my said personal estate and effects (except those I have given to my daughter Caroline) and do hereby direct and impower my said Executrix to retain in her hands sufficient assets to pay the same and my Will further is and I Give and Bequeath to the said Elizabeth Judkins the further sum or annuity of ten pounds a year for and during the term of her natural life or day of marriage which shall first happen to be paid her in equal half yearly payments of ffive pounds each by my said Executrix hereinafter mentioned the first payment whereof I hereby will and direct to commence on that day six months from the time of my death and I likewise charge all my said estate and effects with the payment thereof and do direct my said Executrix to detain and keep in her hands thereout as much as will satisfy and pay the same And my Will further is that after the death of the said Elizabeth Judkins or of her marriage as aforesaid in either of the said cases I Give and Bequeath the same to my said daughter Caroline for her own use for ever and as to all the rest residue and remainder of my said personal estate and effects not herein-before disposed of and after a full sufficiency is left in my said Executrix's hands to answer the several purposes aforesaid my Will is and I hereby Give and bequeath the same to my dearly beloved son James Watson and my said daughter Caroline to be divided equally between them and whom I appoint residuary Legatees of this my Will and I do hereby constitute and appoint my said daughter Caroline Watson full and sole Executrix of my said Will and also make null and void all other and former Wills by me at any time heretofore made and declare this to be my only last Will and Testament In Witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and put my seal this twentieth day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety. James Watson.

This Will was proved at London the Twenty-ninth day of October 1791 by the oath of Caroline Watson, Spinster, the daughter of the deceased and sole executrix.¹

His son, whose full name, as we learn from his sister's will, was James Edmund Watson, practised as a special pleader below the bar from 1793 to 1806 at 4, Essex Court, Middle Temple, and 26, Essex Street, Strand. He was one of the "several gentlemen" who supplied the supplement to Viner's "Abridgment," (6 vols., 8vo, 1799-1806). His sister mentions him in her will as living in 1814 and as the father of three children, James, Frances, and Harriet.

Caroline Watson, the daughter, was born in 1760 or 1761, and under her father's care became an accomplished artist in stipple and mixed engraving.

Miss Watson began to publish in 1780. Among her earlier works is a portrait of George, Prince of Wales, after Catherine Read.

In 1784 she engraved a portrait of Prince William Frederick of Gloucester after Reynolds, and in 1785 a pair of small plates of Princess Sophia and Princess Mary, daughters of George III., after Hoppner, which she dedicated to the Queen, and was then appointed engraver to Her Majesty. Another passport to the royal favour may be found in the fact that James Watson had engraved a very pleasing (and flattering) portrait of Queen Charlotte soon after her marriage, one of his earliest prints.

Miss Watson was also patronised by John, 1st Marquis of Bute, several of whose pictures she engraved. His portrait in peer's robes was engraved by her after the picture by Gainsborough in 1791. In her will, signed only two days before her death, she makes pleasing reference to the friendship entertained for her by the Marchioness of Bute (Frances, second daughter of Thomas Coutts, the banker) and her young daughter Lady Frances Stuart (afterwards Countess of Harrowby).¹ Indeed, her amiable, unassuming, though very retiring disposition won for her the regard of all.

Of her other works, the best are the portraits of Lady Elizabeth Foster (after Downman),² Sir James Harris (afterwards Lord Malmesbury), Nathaniel Chauncy, Prince Gagarin Serguis, Commandant of Moscow, with his wife and son, the Hon. Mrs. Stanhope (as "Contemplation"),³ and Sir Joshua Reynolds himself (after Reynolds), Catherine II., Empress of Russia (after Rosselin), prefixed to the first volume of the "Houghton Gallery," William Woollett (after G. Stuart),

² A good impression in colours realized £60 18s. at Christie's, 4 July, 1901.

³ An example printed in colours sold for £46 4s. at Christie's, 8 June, 1900; while an example of the "first state, before any letters," fetched the very same sum at the Blyth sale in March, 1901.

Samuel Cooper's reputed miniature of Milton, The Marriage of St. Catherine (after Correggio), and the plates to Hayley's "Life of Romney."

Her engravings after Romney include portraits of Madame De Genlis, Lady Hamilton as Cassandra, Miranda, and "Sensibility" (all dated 1809), Mrs. Henry Tighe, the poetess (1811), Ozias Humphry, R.A., and William Hayley.

For Boydell's "Shakespeare," Miss Watson engraved The Death of Cardinal Beaufort (after Reynolds), and a scene from the "Tempest," Ferdinand and Miranda playing at chess (after Wheatley). She also executed a set of aquatints of the "Progress of Female Virtue and Female Dissipation," from designs by Maria Cosway; while after Cosway himself she engraved the portrait group of Charles Anderson Pelham (afterwards Lord Yarborough), his beautiful wife (so well known through Dickinson's delightful mezzotint of her portrait by Reynolds) and their six children, and in 1786 the Woronzow Children (the son and daughter of Simon, Count Woronzow, a Russian nobleman).

Shortly before her death, Miss Watson retired to Harpenden Common, Herts, but eventually returned to London and died in Pimlico, 10 June, 1814, in her fifty-fourth year.¹ She was buried in the old church, Marylebone. A tablet to her memory was afterwards affixed to the south wall of the church by John Eardley Wilmot, with five absurd couplets by Hayley, in which she is addressed as "Meek Caroline."² Unlike most of her craft she died rich.

44. HALE, MRS.

After Sir J. Reynolds.

Similar to No. 43, but with many little differences. The expression of Mrs. Hale's face in No. 44, as Chaloner Smith remarks, is not so pleasing as in No. 43, "and the plate may have been rejected for this reason." Among other differences, there are seven pearls on sleeve of r. arm instead of six, without an interval as in No. 43; five on lower row of l. arm instead of four; the flowers in the bosom are more made out; the herbage in the foreground is different; the distant mountain-line meets the upper lip in the girl playing the cymbals and not the under. (Cf. Hamilton.) $24\frac{1}{4}$ by 15.

- I. Before any inscription. B. M. (E.; Cheyl.).
- II. With artists' names and line of publication, "Sold by Ryland and Bryer at the Kings Arms Cornhill," with many of the differences. Hamilton (citing Royal Collection, Windsor Castle).

81. PARSONS, NANCY. After G. Willison.

An admired demi-monde beauty, "endowed with rare powers of attraction." This woman was the daughter of a tailor in Bond Street, and she first lived with one Hoghton or Horton, a "West-India-captive merchant, with whom she went to Jamaica, but from whom she fled to England." In 1776, as "Mrs. Anne Horton," she persuaded Charles, 2nd Viscount Maynard ("poor simple Lord Maynard," then barely 24) to marry her. Nancy is described by Horace Walpole in 1764 (twelve years before this marriage) as "one of the commonest creatures in London; now out of date," and is called "the Duke of Grafton's Mrs. Horton, the Duke of Dorset's Mrs. Horton, everybody's Mrs. Horton." The viscountess is said to have died about 1808.

W.L., on couch in carpeted room, reclining r., looking f., with her l. arm on cushion of couch, r. hand in lap, hair dressed in plaits with veil, studded belt; before head of couch is a basket. 22 by 18.

84. STACPOOLE, JOHN. After Jeremiah Barrett.

To waist, in a circle, dir. a little r., looking f., short wig, plain dark coat, neckcloth. 12½ by 11.

In engraved lettering: "Barrett pinx^t James Watson fecit. John Stacpoole Esq^r of Cragbrien Castle in the County of Clare Who departed this Life the 18th of April 1771, at the Advanced Age of Ninety Seven, retaining to that late Period the most eminent Abilities, joined to the greatest Philanthropy of Heart, so that it remained a Question whether He was most Beloved or Admired, and though His Mansion was the Seat of the most unbounded Hospitality, His Coffers ever open to the Indigent and Deserving, and His Indulgence to a numerous Tenantry seemed more like the Parent than the Landlord, to the establishment of many Familys; yet He increased His Patrimony to that degree, and purchased so many and extensive Tracts of Land, as to leave behind him one of the Largest and best Circumstanced Estates in Ireland, and so far was He from taking advantage of any Ones Distrefs, that All who ever dealt with Him, acknowledged Him as the Fairest and most Liberal of Purchasers.

If Learning, Eloquence, and Graceful Ease,
Sense to advise, and sprightly Wit to please,
And every Innate virtue Heaven e'er gave Could make Immortal, He had escaped the Grave."

B. M. (E.; P.; Cheyl., two impressions).

February 15, 1772.

85. MOORE, MISS. After P. É. Falconet.

Bromley (p. 441), to judge from his description, identifies the portrait as that of Miss Moore. It is possible, as Chaloner Smith suggests, that she is "the Miss Moore who was afterwards Lady Bampfylde." See Watson (Thomas), No. 36.

Fully to waist, leaning on cushion l., letter in l. hand; dir. l., looking f.; she wears a large hat, a black cape, and a dress with wide sleeves. $11\frac{1}{4}$ by 9.

ELIZABETH JUDKINS

ELIZABETH JUDKINS may have belonged to one of the yeoman families of that name seated at Daventry and elsewhere in Northamptonshire. She was the daughter of Reuben Judkins,¹ and the sister-in-law of James Watson, and probably his pupil in the art of mezzotint engraving. Two of her works were published from his address. In 1772 and again in 1775 she exhibited two engravings with the Society of Artists at Spring Gardens.

Her published works, which do not number more than eight or nine are well drawn and expressed, and possess great merit; indeed, her portrait of Mrs. Abington (after Reynolds) is a superb example of the art. Nevertheless, for some reason unknown to us, she did not publish after 1775, in which year, too, her brother-in-law ceased to sell his own prints.

¹ Elizabeth Judkins and her parents are mentioned in the will (dated 27 April, proved 11 May, 1759) of Mary Judkins, widow, of St Giles's, Cripplegate (P.C.C. 172, Arran). With her sister, Mrs. Mary Watson, she benefited, to the extent of twenty pounds, under the will of her cousin, William Judkins, a well-to-do grocer of Stoney Stratford, Bucks. In his will, which was signed 13 July, 1780, and proved 26 March, 1784 (P.C.C. 146, Rockingham), William Judkins mentions "my friend John Goodman of Towcester in the county of Northampton, currier."

At his death in 1790, James Watson left her an annuity of twenty pounds. This sum was increased in 1814 by the substantial addition of seventy pounds yearly under the will of her niece, Caroline Watson, who refers to her in terms of affection, and made her other bequests, such as twenty-four volumes of her books and a precious locket containing the hair of the Marchioness of Bute ("my ever kind patroness and friend") and Lady Frances Stuart. After July, 1814, we lose sight of Elizabeth Judkins.¹
